Invitation for your IT and Computer Science students to attend the International Week at EFREI Paris Panthéon-Assas

Dear Sir or Madam,

We are members of iWeek, a student association of EFREI, an IT engineering school, based in Paris, France and a partner of your institution. For the last 20 years, our association has been contributing to the internationalisation of the student community by organising short international programs for the IT and computer science students at our partner universities. As EFREI has a network of over 90 international partners in more than 40 countries, our iWeek program is a great opportunity for IT students from all around the world to meet each other, to discover Paris, our campus and to meet students and academics from EFREI.

The EFREI iWeek program will take place from Saturday March 9th to Sunday March 17th, 2024. During that week, participating students will have the opportunity to socialise with French students and academics,present their home university to EFREI students, visit Paris and get a taste for the study abroad lifestyle.

The total cost of this program for the participants is only 100€ for the entire week. Participating students will also have to cover for their international transport and travel insurance.

During the week, participants will be hosted for free in the homes of EFREI students and our association will provide all the following services for free: airport pick up, local transportation and sightseeing fees as well as all meals.

If possible, we would appreciate if your International Office could provide the participating students with goodies and brochures from their home university. Students are also encouraged to bring cultural specialties from their country to present to EFREI students during the EFREI Paris International Fair which will take place on our campus on March 14th.

IT and computer Science students from your institution can apply online until January 28th 2024. The number of participants being limited, the iWeek organising team will select the candidates and confirm participation mid-January. Usually, we cannot welcome more than one student per partner university.

For further information, you can visit our website i-week.fr and our Instagram account @i_week.

Thank you for sharing this information and the program poster with the students in IT, computer science or related disciplines. We would also be very grateful if you could transfer this message to anyone you think would be able to advertise our program to your IT students. We look forward to welcoming your students in Paris.

Yours faithfully,

The iWeek Team
